

- There are more humorous takes on Joan's life. Epic Battle of History: Joan of Arc versus Miley Cyrus by Nice Peter and EpicLloyd is a short video in which Joan of Arc (Jessi Smiles) confronts Miley Cyrus (Michelle Glavan) in a rap battle.
- 1 Miley/Joan's very first line "Lord forgive me for the words I speak, I know the voices of the angels tell me turn the other cheek." which is of course referencing the fact that Joan lived her life under the orders of God and the angels.
  - 2 Joan of Arc did say "all that I did was on the orders of God." (Proces et Condamnacion).
  - 3 The rap also speaks of Joan's leadership. She was inspired to lead the French army against the English. A parallel is drawn between her and modern-day book character Katniss Everdeen. "Je suis la fille en feu I am the girl on fire, call me Katniss Everdeen." This line refers to the character from The Hunger Games who is nicknamed "the girl on fire."
  - 4 Joan was also known for wearing men's clothing which she began to do when she started her journey to save France. virgo vestibus virilibus induta. This is referred to in the rap
  - 5 "You're a cross-dressing peasant, betrayed by those you defended." The last bit refers to the
  - 6 actions of the French.
