

The Art Guys-Suitcase Wheel 1995 307.3cm diameter

This is a huge wheel made out of suit cases

Its very geometric and not organic.

the outside is very regular and the inside is irregular. The colours are muted and not bright. It looks a little bit unstable and you would need to be carefull if you got close to it.

You could play on it

Testing boundaries of art

Work is quite cheeky,

It is questioning why we take art so seriously, instead of just enjoying it.

Making us think about everyday objects that we take for granted, and giving them a new context.

Influenced by ready-mades

Ready made art works are often anti-estblihsment - this has no obvious political or social comment

but maybe about travelling around the world?

About transport?

Its interesting how the colours of the sculpture relate to the colours of the gallery. I wonder if this is planned or accidental?

This is something that painters think about but not always the case for sculptors
